IMPORTANT

If you disagree with all or any portion of the attached notice of deficiency determination, the law requires you to file a timely petition for redetermination with the Department of Taxation. Failure to file a timely petition for redetermination will result in the determination becoming final with no right of appeal or refund.

In filling out this petition you must state specifically the grounds upon which you are contesting the deficiency determination. Failure to specify the grounds upon which your petition for redetermination is based will delay the process and may detrimentally affect the ability to present your position. Pursuant to NRS 360.360, you have 45 days to file this petition for redetermination as set forth on the attached notice of deficiency determination. If you have any questions concerning the date this petition for redetermination is due, please contact the Department. The Department will review your petition and any information provided to substantiate the grounds listed in contesting the deficiency determination, and make any adjustments to the determination that the Department deems justified. If the Department determines that there is no basis for re-determining the original deficiency determination or if there still exists a dispute, you will be sent a Request for Hearing. Unless you have requested a hearing by returning the Request for Hearing form within 30 days, you will have waived your right to a hearing and any subsequent appeals and the re-determined deficiency determination will be final.

Any adverse decision from the Administrative Law Judge may be appealed to the Nevada Tax Commission. Pursuant to NRS 233B.130, you may seek judicial review in District Court of any adverse decision from the Nevada Tax Commission
