Subject: Yes, Enron was an accounting scandal but so is a poorly done audit.

Hello Commissioners,

Enron was an accounting scandal which I agree, but a poorly done audit is an accounting scandal for small businesses.

I want to talk about what happens before the audit appeal gets to the ALJ. There is a Petition for Redetermination done by the same folks that did the audit. That is like asking the person who robbed your business to return what they took from you. Remember, the folks involved in the review are the same folks that told the auditor how to do the audit. Those folks are the Audit Supervisor, Audit Manager, and Audit Tax Manager. These Petition for Redeterminations have taken up to two years to get done before the audit is referred to the ALJ. I ask you, "is that fair or even makes common sense?"

Thank You and Be Safe,
